Upstream's Bryan Rader Receives Industry Cornerstone Award

AUSTIN, TEXAS (April 18, 2019) – Bryan J. Rader, President of Upstream Network, was presented with the Cornerstone Award last week at Broadband Communities annual Summit in Austin, Texas, for his decades of leadership and guidance in the multi-family broadband industry. Steve Ross, managing editor for Broadband Communities, presented the award. "He's one of the stalwarts of the broadband industry," Ross said. "He has been a guiding force in the industry for many years."

The Cornerstone Awards are presented each year by Broadband Communities to companies or individuals who make a difference in this market. Ross continued, "Bryan advocates for professional, high quality broadband that works for residents, owners and providers. His attention to customer experience has really helped the industry on this goal."

"I am so honored to accept the prestigious Cornerstone Award," Bryan Rader announced. "It is such a pleasure to be a part of a thriving industry and to have the honor to work with so many amazing, talented associates. All of us in this market have a chance every day to out-perform our competition and excel in customer experience."

Broadband Communities was proud to present this year's award to Rader. They have been presenting the Cornerstone Award since 1996.
