UPSTREAM CLIMBS TO THE FRONT WITH RECENTLY CONNECTED COMMUNITIES

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS (June 3, 2019) - Upstream Network has continued its assault on the multi-family industry as it has added another 2,500 units to its proprietary network over the past two months. "Each of our communities are experiencing top-of-the-market speeds and internet performance when they are connected to our platform," said Bryan J. Rader, President of Upstream. "We've recently added communities in Fort Lauderdale, Denver and Chicago."

The company has developed its internet platform to support today's rapid growth in streaming services. "We see new products coming to market like Disney+ and ESPN+ which drives customers to expect reliable internet." Rader continued.

Upstream recently connected San Raphael Condominium to its network. One customer said "speeds have jumped overnight, and I stream multiple services at the same time without any issues."

Upstream Network has plans to launch another 2,500 units during the summer months in its core markets. "The platform sells itself," said Arnie Guttenberg, Business Development Manager in south Florida. "Once customers try it, they realize how vital high quality internet service is to their everyday lives."
